

We run the same conversation twice, changing only who the user says they are, and compare what the agent does at every stage same request · same catalog · same model · same decoding

Because everything except the descriptor is held identical, a difference in any column is attributable to the descriptor.
An audit that reads only the last column cannot see the first four.